HOMELESS COUNSELING

HOUSING COUNSELING WORKS FOR HOMELESS

Although overall homelessness has declined, the number of people at risk remains at post-recession levels.

Recent increases in federal funding have aided progress in reducing homelessness overall and among the most vulnerable groups. Indeed, the number of beds in permanent supportive housing expanded 60% between 2007 and 2014, to over 300,000. Beds for the chronically homeless accounted for just over half of this increase.

As a result, during the time period of 2007-14 total homelessness fell 11%, the number of homeless veterans dropped 19%, and the number of chronically homeless individuals was down by 30%. At the same time, however, the number of homeless people in families declined by only 8%.
